David:

We missed you yesterday, but I understand you were helping people in the flooded areas.

Between the two of us, I was very disappointed at the progress made by both committees. The project does not have any enthusiasm - life - spark.

You know I have my wish list, which I've given to various people. Whenever I mention some of these things to Lisa, she says someone is already doing it. BUT, when I saw what was produced so far on the restoration, I can only say "YUK!" There is no past, except the pollution; little present; and absolutely no exciting vision for the future uses of the river and its environs.

We're planning a meeting with the municipalities, counties, and elected officials in mid-September at the Hackensack Meadowlands Environmental Education Center. I'll let you know once we have the room reserved.
